INTRODUCTION

Richard Lochhead MSP Minister for Further Education, Higher Education and Science

“Scotland’s education system provides the people of Scotland with a gateway to improving their life chances and developing as individuals, as well as acquiring the skills and qualifications that we need for the economy. The SCQF Partnership is a vital part of that education system, providing important and appropriate access to education and training to people over their lifetime.

I was delighted to learn that this year the SCQF Partnership was awarded the Investors in People Gold award, a great achievement, recognising the hard work and commitment of the Partnership.

The extension of the School Ambassador programme was another outstanding achievement with over 100 schools across all local authorities engaging with the programme. The development of Senior Phase learning pathways in line with the Developing the Young Workforce strategy is one of the many valuable aspects of the programme. Important progress has also been made this year with the further development of the College Ambassador Programme offering colleges the opportunity to learn more about the benefits of the SCQF and the wider ways in which it supports learners.

I am also grateful for the Partnership’s continued commitment to the Learner Journey Review and to the implementation of the recommendations of the Review, where young people from across Scotland told us about their desire for more choice and clear planned pathways in support of their progression. Our Learner Journey programme will ensure Scotland’s education and skills system continues to meet the needs of all learners. This year has brought with it challenges which none of us could have foreseen. The COVID-19 pandemic has impacted on the delivery of education in a way that is truly unprecedented. Our priority remains to deliver excellence in teaching and equity across Scottish education, with an immediate emphasis on supporting the health and wellbeing of children and young people. It is therefore more important than ever that we continue to invest in the right qualifications and the right types of learning to deliver the best outcomes for our young people and for the Scottish Economy. I commend the SCQF Partnership for their achievements this year.”

THE SCOTTISH CREDIT AND QUALIFICATIONS FRAMEWORK

This Framework diagram has been produced to show the mainstream Scottish qualifications already credit rated by SQA and HEIs. However, there are a diverse number of learning programmes on the Framework, which, due to the limitations of this format, cannot be represented here. For more information, please visit the SCQF website at www.scqf.org.uk to view the interactive version of the Framework or search the Database.

WELCOME TO OUR 2019/20 ANNUAL REPORT

Chair & CEO's Report

Over the past year, our key areas of focus were capacity building, supporting key aspects of the Government's education agenda and continuing to ensure the widest possible engagement with our stakeholders.

We extended our School Ambassador Programme and by the year end we had over 100 schools across all local authorities who had engaged with the programme and been trained. Feedback on this has been very positive and we hope to sustain continued growth launching a revised version of the programme in autumn 2020. In addition we continued to expand our College Ambassador Programme with another 4 colleges joining the programme during the year.

We further developed our work to support Veterans, creating a number of new leaflets for specific roles in the Army and also providing advice to the MoD in understanding the range of qualifications they support and how these relate to the SCQF.

We reviewed our support for Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) and in addition to workshops we also completed a full review of the online RPL toolkit which streamlined the system and hopefully made it even easier for a diverse group of individuals to engage with it.

Quality Assurance of the SCQF is always central to our work and during the year we undertook a full review of our quality assurance model taking feedback from Credit Rating bodies, our Board and Quality Committee along with our external reviewers. The updated model was approved by the Board in March and will be rolled out during 2021.

We launched a campaign called Inclusive Recruiter to ask businesses to consider using the SCQF levels in job adverts rather than naming qualifications. The benefits of this are to open up the potential pool of applicants who may have a range of qualifications that would meet the person specification and not just focus in on one type of qualification. We have been pleased with the response from different types of business and will continue to build on this.

We were delighted that during the year our Investors in People Silver award was reviewed and in December 2019 we were awarded Gold – a real tribute to our team of professional and helpful staff and our desire to provide a supportive and collaborative approach to all our work.

Finally, we would have to say that at the very end of the year we had to work quickly to ensure that we could move the whole organisation to work from home following Scottish Government guidance in relation to COVID-19. We can assure you that in doing this we continue to provide the level of service and support our stakeholders have come to expect. We also recognise and value the ongoing support we receive from them to ensure that the benefits of the SCQF are widely understood and used to best advantage and we would like to thank them for that support.

SCQF Partnership Takes the Gold

In December 2019 the SCQF Partnership team was awarded the Investors in People Standard at Gold level.

Based on 30 years of leading practice, the Investors in People Standard is underpinned by a rigorous assessment methodology and a framework which reflects the very latest workplace trends, essential skills and effective structures required to outperform in any industry.

Successful accreditation against the Standard is the sign of a great employer, an outperforming place to work and a clear commitment to sustained success.

IIP reps confirmed that the SCQFP's particular strengths lie within the key areas of Empowering and Involving People, Structuring Work, and Creating Sustainable Success.

Aileen Ponton, CEO, said: "I was delighted but not surprised that our organisation was recognised as meeting the Gold standard. The whole team contributed to the review of our Investors in People credentials and worked hard to identify ways in which we could improve or enhance our professional service to stakeholders and each other. My thanks go to them for their continued commitment to the success of the SCQF."

Remote working due to COVID-19 crisis

Further to UK and Scottish Government guidance given on 16 March 2020 regarding the coronavirus outbreak, the decision was taken to close the SCQF Partnership offices and staff have been working from home until such time as this guidance is reviewed.

Work is ongoing to ensure that SCQF workshops will be available online. Moving forward this means that attendees from more remote parts of the UK will find it easier and more cost-effective to participate in SCQF sessions.
